Centre appeal is flying high

A big thank you is being paid to people in Epsom who have helped the Macmillian Butterfly Centre Appeal reach its fundraising target of £750,000.

The appeal, started in 1999, has funded the building of the Macmillan Butterfly Centre at Epsom General Hospital, a Macmillan information officer and a volunteer co-ordinator to staff the centre.

Andy Harris, Macmillan appeal manager, said: "Raising this fantastic amount of money has only been possible through huge commitment – thank you is simply not enough."

The target amount was completed by a generous donation of £20,000 from the Butterfly Appeal founded by Roy and Nancy Richmond.
